ABMA COMPLIANCE ACCREDITATIONS

Recognising excellence in compliance

RECOGNITION OF COMPLIANCE EXCELLENCE

Building owners and/or their building managers seeking to gain recognition of maintenance and compliance excellence under existing legislation may now have their building audited for compliance by the impartial regulator – the ABMA. To guarantee sustained compliance excellence, buildings are encouraged to enter into an annual Building Accreditation program with the ABMA where the building is audited by an Accredited Compliance & Performance Assessor for full compliance under all existing legislation.

Non-compliant buildings benefit from site-specific support and strategies for correcting all non-compliance issues as part of the auditing process. Harvested compliance documentation is retained by the ABMA for posterity and is available to authorised representatives of the building, for the full life cycle of the building.

RECOGNITION OF SERVICE COMPETENCY

Industry Practitioners, such as Building Managers, Facilities Managers, Caretakers, Building Durability Consultants and Compliance Assessors seeking to gain recognition of skills may now become accredited with Australian Building Management Accreditation. To achieve ABMA Industry Practitioner Accreditation, only entities and/or individuals capable of satisfying the ABMA competency criteria will achieve full Accreditation. The ABMA register of Accredited Industry Practitioners provides information to building owners seeking to align their building servicing requirements with competent and qualified service providers.

Annual evidence of continuing professional development (CPD) is required for renewal of ABMA Industry Practitioner Accreditation status to ensure the industry is constantly improving and in line with current standards.
